

The Eastern Bay Oyster Siting Survey

The Eastern Bay and its tributaries provide commercial and recreational opportunities to many. These waters are also populated by countless wild species, including many economically important fisheries. Many people call this area their home or have other reasons to feel connected to the area. Efforts to restore and support wild oyster populations and oyster aquaculture will help ensure the bounty provided by these waterways and the health of wild populations into the future. However, these efforts involve complex decisions with sometimes competing interests, opinions, and goals. The working group has developed a survey to solicit opinions from a broad group of stakeholders regarding the siting of future oyster restoration activities and oyster aquaculture in the Eastern Bay. By participating in this survey, you make your voice heard and directly contribute to the process of siting oyster restoration and aquaculture in the Eastern Bay. Specifically, the data gathered from this exercise will be used to represent the public's preference for siting oyster restoration activities and oyster aquaculture. We encourage all who consider themselves stakeholders of the Eastern Bay to participate and hope to capture the opinions of as diverse a group as possible.
